2009 Large-Format Bookings Yearbook

Films and bookings of 2008

Last year marked the first time that bookings of repurposed Hollywood features in giant-screen theaters outnumbered bookings of original GS films. Of some 1,951 bookings that began in calendar 2008, 1,018 (52%) were of 17 DMR films, and the remaining 933 were of 107 traditional, non-Hollywood giant-screen titles. (The 17 Hollywood features include a handful of second-run bookings of older films, in addition to the eight new films that premiered in 2008.)

It is hardly surprising that DMR bookings should now be the majority. Multiplex theaters represent a growing portion of the giant-screen marketplace, reducing the former dominance of institutional theaters. With the rapid spread of IMAX digital theaters, multiplex screens will outnumber institutional, standalone, and theme park theaters combined by the end of 2009.

At the same time, last year's total of eight DMR releases was a record, up from six in 2007 and seven in 2006. As the number of new DMR films increases, the window between each release necessarily decreases, and so do booking lengths. In 2004, when only three DMR titles opened, the average time between openings was 124 days. In 2007, with six films, the average was 60 days, and last year, with eight new films, the average dropped to 46 days. Although multiplexes occasionally carry a film over (on a greatly reduced schedule) for a week or so after the opening of the next, most of them effectively run only one film at a time, unless there is an unusually long window between releases. Non-multiplex theaters, on the other hand, almost never give DMR titles exclusive runs.

As shown in Table 1, the average length of a giant-screen booking last year fell dramatically to 103 days from 150 days in 2007, a 31% drop. This is by far the largest decline since we started publishing the Yearbook ten years ago. Although this drop coincides with the introduction of Imax Corporation's new digital projection system, which began last summer, it probably was not a major factor in the decline: bookings in the 44 digital IMAX theaters in place by the end of 2008 accounted for only 15% of all multiplex bookings. The shortening of the average booking is caused by DMR films in general, and the steadily increasing number of new Hollywood films.

C: Commercial I: Institutional M: Multiplex

Booking lengths have been declining steadily since we began publishing twelve years ago, reflecting a number of changes in the giant-screen business over the last two decades. Before 2000, when Hollywood embarked on giant-screen production with Fantasia/2000, and museums and science centers represented the majority of theaters, these declines were caused by the then-new practice of putting three, four, or more films on the schedule at once. This was in contrast to the first few decades of the business, when the lack of new films often meant that theaters had little choice but to show only one or two films at a time, and to keep them on the schedule for six months or a year, or more.

As the number of giant screens increased through the 1980s and 1990s, more and more films were produced, and theaters had more options. In the late 1990s, Imax began its push to sell IMAX theaters to multiplexes, boosting the number of theaters rapidly. Multiplex operators and standalone commercial theaters took advantage of the large number of films to offer their customers a wide selection of titles. The multiplexes were used to running films for only a few weeks at a time, and changing them quickly if they didn't perform up to expectation, practices that were uncommon on the institutional side, in part because of the long lead times needed for school bookings.

By the time Hollywood studios began providing GS editions of their films to the multiplexes, many institutional theaters had begun to take advantage of the large selection of films available to them to run more films for shorter periods. They may not have been consciously following the model of the multiplexes, but the principles of supply and demand led to similar results.

The advent of Imax's DMR process led to a rapid and fairly stark bifurcation of the industry, with respect to bookings. For the most part, the multiplex chains, which before 2002 had had no choice but to show original LF films like Everest and T-Rex, have now switched over to showing DMR films almost exclusively. Only a few of the smaller, regional chains have continued to show traditional 45-minute documentaries in their giant-screen theaters. Of course, many institutional and commercial standalone theaters book the DMR films, so the two markets are not totally exclusive.

However, this situation may change as digital IMAX theaters become more common. Industry insiders are already hearing rumors that studios will soon limit the number of 15/70 prints they produce, making them available to only the top performing screens. In many if not most cases, this may mean that institutional theaters will no longer be offered DMR titles on a day-and-date basis. Such a development could in turn lead to a more rapid conversion of existing MPX and SR screens to digital, and ultimately to studios producing no 15/70 prints at all, or a mere handful for the most popular GT theaters that are too large to convert to digital. At this point, conceivably as soon as two or three years from now, the multiplex side of the business will have effectively divorced itself from rest of the giant-screen industry.

Top films of 2008

Of the top ten films by bookings count (see page 24), only one — National Geographic's Sea Monsters — was a traditional giant-screen film. Eight of the rest were DMR films, and the ninth was Fly Me to the Moon, an animated feature produced by giant-screen veteran Ben Stassen of nWave Pictures and released in conventional and giant-screen theaters. All of the top ten films had more than 100 bookings.

For general acclaim, the year's highlight was The Dark Knight, the first Hollywood film to feature footage shot with IMAX cameras. It broke box office records, earning over $500 million domestically, including $62 million in IMAX theaters, in its initial run, before being brought back to theaters in January 2009. The second engagement brought its worldwide gross to over $1 billion. However, since those later bookings aren't counted here, and because its original opening came before any of the IMAX digital screens were open, The Dark Knight doesn't top our list of giant screen bookings in 2008.

That distinction goes to The Day the Earth Stood Still, which, along with the number two film, Madagascar: Escape 2 Africa, broke the record for bookings in a single calendar year (146) set by Harry Potter and the Order of the Phoenix in 2007. Despite high bookings counts, not all of 2008's DMR films did great business. Shine A Light, The Spiderwick Chronicles, and Speed Racer all came in well below expectations.

Twelfth on the list, with 86 bookings, was Nat Geo's concert film, U2 3D. Traditional giant-screen documentaries, including Imax's Deep Sea 3D, MacGillivray Freeman Films' Grand Canyon Adventure, and Giant Screen Films' Dinosaurs Alive, occupy the next ten slots.

With four wide releases in 2008, including two from Dreamworks Animation, Paramount Pictures became the top distributor of LF films, with 518 bookings, beating out Warner Bros., which had held the top slot for the previous three years. (See Table 4 below.) But National Geographic also beat Warner in 2008, edging the big studio out with 365 bookings, compared to WB's 364. Imax Corporation came next, with 256 bookings, followed by MacGillivray with 250 and Giant Screen Films with 169.

As was the case in previous years, the major multiplex chains booked virtually no traditional GS documentary-style films, preferring DMR films and a handful of other titles, such as U2 3D and Fly Me to the Moon, that are outside the traditional box, even though they are distributed by LF distributors. Regal Entertainment Group placed U2 3D in about 18 of its IMAX theaters for an average of 44 days, and Fly Me on two screens for 20 days. And its Fresno theater showed Imax's Deep Sea 3D and Space Station briefly. The rest of the time, the 31 Regal IMAX theaters, including 15 IMAX digital houses, showed only DMR films.

Similarly, about half of AMC Entertainment's 33 IMAX theaters (27 of which are digital) showed Fly Me to the Moon, and about a dozen of the digital screens ran

Space Station, usually during the soft opening period between the conversion and the premiere of the next DMR title. Otherwise, all 33 ran nothing but Hollywood films.

The same basic pattern applied to Cine-mark USA's six screens and National Amusements's eight. Canada's Cineplex circuit booked only DMR titles, as did Mexico's Cinepolis, Spain's Yelmo, and Britain's Odeon chains.

The biggest exceptions to this pattern among multiplexes are Michigan-based Goodrich Quality Theatres, which has shown a variety of original GS films along with all the DMR titles, and the two IMAX theaters in South Africa. Finally, the Cinema City chain, headquartered in Israel with eight IMAX theaters throughout eastern Europe, is unique in having booked no DMR titles at all.

On the institutional side, 69 institutional theaters, well over half of the world's 119 institutional IMAX screens, have now booked at least one DMR film. (The 86 non-IMAX institutional theaters do not have the option of booking DMR films.) Forty booked at least one last year, and nearly half of those booked four or more of last year's eight DMR titles.

Table 5 on page 5 shows the market penetration data we began reporting in 2004's Yearbook. A word about the numbers and how they were reached:

Calculating the percentage of possible theaters a given film has reached is complicated by several factors, the primary one being the multiple film formats embraced under the "large-format" rubric. Since not all films are distributed in 8/70, and even fewer are printed to 10/70, it would be inappropriate to count those theaters against a film's potential market. Also, older films that are no longer active had a smaller universe of theaters available to them.

So to calculate penetration, we took the starting date of each film's latest (or last) booking, and counted the number of theaters open on that date. (This ensures that each film is measured against the actual number of theaters it could have reached by the end of its active life.) Penetration is the number of theaters that booked the film divided by the total number of theaters open at that time. If the film was distributed in 8/70 and/or 10/70, theaters with those formats are counted in the All Bookings total. We also present columns that show penetration in 15/70 theaters only, 8/70 theaters only, and both 8/70 and 15/70 (but not 10/70). The top 20 films released since 1997 are shown in each column. (Before 1997 our bookings data are incomplete.)

Measuring penetration naturally favors older films that have had a chance to work their way through the worldwide circuit of LF theaters. Recently released films will rarely have as high a penetration number as older titles.

Because the table covers a relatively long timeframe, familiar titles remain at the top of the lists: Everest, Mysteries of Egypt, T-Rex, and Space Station, although their order has shifted slightly. As was the case last year, several new films that had wide releases have managed to find places on this year's table, including The Dark

Knight, Sea Monsters, and Kung Fu Panda.

Note

The average booking lengths referred to in this article were calculated by combining contiguous listings (which are sometimes shown as separate entries in our regular bookings lists) and excluding from the count:

- Bookings that started before the year being averaged;
- Bookings for which we did not have precise start and end dates;
- Film festival screenings;
- School bookings (films shown irregularly to school groups, but which are not on the regular public schedule);
- Certain destination films with extremely long runs at their home theaters.

This left 1,578 records from which we calculated the average booking lengths in days, based on the starting date of the booking.

Bookings: 2008 by Film

2,608 bookings of 151 films at 373 theaters

The data on the following pages are not warranted to be comprehensive or accurate in every detail, despite our best efforts to make them so. They have been compiled from surveys of LF theaters, distributors, the world wide web, and other sources.

We will make every effort to improve the thoroughness, accuracy, and usefulness of these data. If your theater or film is not shown here, please get in touch with us to update our listings.

Where a date is not shown, it means that no date was provided by the source or, in the case of a closing date, that no date has been set, or that the run is indefinite.
